

Input by civil society organisations to the Asylum Report 2026

Dear Colleagues,

The production of the Asylum Report 2026 is currently underway. The annual Asylum Report presents an overview of developments in the field of international protection in Europe.

The report includes information and perspectives from various stakeholders, including experts from EU+ countries, civil society organisations, researchers and UNHCR. To this end, we invite you, our partners from civil society, academia and research institutions, to share your reporting on developments in asylum law, policies or practices in 2025 by topic as presented in the online survey ('Part A' of the form).

We also invite you to share with us any publications your organisation has produced throughout 2025 on issues related to asylum in EU+ countries ('Part B' of the form).

These may be:

- reports;
- articles;
- recommendations to national authorities or EU institutions;
- open letters and analytical outputs.

Your input can cover information for a specific EU+ country or the EU as a whole. You can complete all or only some of the sections.

Please note that the Asylum Report does not seek to describe national systems in detail but rather to present key developments of the past year, including improvements and challenges which remain.

All submissions are publicly accessible. For transparency, contributions will be published on the EUAA webpage and contributing organisations will be listed under the Acknowledgements of the report.

All contributions should be appropriately referenced. You may include links to supporting material, such as:

- analytical studies;
- articles;
- reports;
- websites;
- press releases;
- position papers.

Some sources of information may be in a language other than English. In this case, please cite the original language and, if possible, provide one to two sentences describing the key messages in English.

The content of the Asylum Report is subject to terms of reference and volume limitations. Contributions from civil society organisations feed into EUAA's work in multiple ways and inform reports and analyses beyond the Asylum Report.

NB: Similarly to last year, this year's edition of the Asylum Report will be leaner and more analytical, with streamlined thematic sections. The focus will be on key trends in the field of asylum rather than on individual developments. For this reason, information shared by respondents to this call may be incorporated in the Asylum Report in a format different than in the past years. It will also feature prominently as info boxes in the country overviews.

Your input matters to us and will be much appreciated!

*Please submit your contribution to the Asylum Report 2026 by Friday, 9 January 2026.*

General Observations

Before sharing information by thematic area, please provide your general observations on asylum developments as indicated in the following three fields:

1. What areas would you highlight where important developments took place in the country/countries you cover?

-In 2025 the management of the Reception center for foreigners (detention center for migrants) has declared that no unaccompanied children will be held in detention from the beginning of the year (after several years of advocacy by MYLA and UNHCR for this practice to end). During the year no unaccompanied child was detained in the centre. However, this is only oral declaration, and it is not envisioned in the law/bylaw meaning that if the management of the center is changed, this decision may be changed as well.

2. What are the areas, where only few or no developments took place?

-There is still no integration strategy or integration law developed in 2024. However in line with the National Development Strategy that was adopted by the Parliament in 2024, several integration challenges and solutions for refugees and foreigners were discussed in three separate workshops, and concrete steps were proposed for the improvement of the integration system.

-The implementation of the Governmental decision for granting temporary protection for Ukrainian nationals is still not fully in place, and the necessary changes in four laws remain in order for the Ukrainians to have effective access to rights according to their status, especially access to health care, social services and employment.

-The legal status of both transit centres in the country is still not regulated, so is the status of the people accommodated in those centres and the procedure for their registration, accommodation and referral.

-The asylum seekers are still prevented from their right to have free access to the labour market according to the Law on International and Temporary Protection, and they cannot obtain a personal identification number.

-The unlawful administrative detention of migrants as witnesses in criminal procedures against the smugglers remained in 2025. There are no alternatives to detention, so children and vulnerable people are still detained in a prison-like centre.

3. Would you have any observations to share specifically about the implementation of the Pact on Migration and Asylum in the national context of the country/ countries you cover?

As North Macedonia is not yet a Member State, there isn't something specific we would like to highlight about the implementation of the Pact, but it is worth mentioning that the state has a plan for the Law on International and Temporary Protection to be amended according to the newly developed EU legislative.

PART A: Contributions by topic

Please share your reporting on developments in asylum law, policies or practices in 2025 by topic. Kindly make sure that you provide information on:

- ✓ New developments and improvements in 2025 and new or remaining challenges;
- ✓ Changes in legislation, policies or practices, or institutional changes during 2025.

1. Access to territory and access to the asylum procedure (including first arrival to territory and registration, arrival at the border, application of the non-refoulement principle, the right to first response (shelter, food, medical treatment) and issues regarding border guards)

In 2015, in response to a significant influx of refugees and migrants, the country declared a "state of crisis," which is still in effect for border areas adjacent to Greece and Serbia. This status grants the government enhanced authorities to regulate the entry and passage of migrants and allows for the deployment of additional resources, including military forces, as deemed necessary.

As part of the Western-Balkan route, in 2015, the two transit centres were opened in North Macedonia, the one in the south – Transit center Vinojug and the one in the north – Transit center Tabanovce and they are still operational for registration and accommodation of migrants, even though the legal status of both centres is not regulated. In these transit centres the migrants are provided with food, basic medical treatments and shelter. However, there is no proper psychological support in both centres, and there aren't any educational and recreative activities in the TC Tabanovce.

This practice of informal deportation by the police on the south border with Greece has ended since 2024. However the people on the move have an opportunity to either submit an asylum application and be transferred to the Reception center for asylum seekers in the capital city of Skopje or to leave the TC Vinojug on their own and return to Greece, because otherwise if they are caught by the police within the territory of the country, they would most probably be returned to TC Vinojug.

The people on the move were initially registered with their official information in the transit centers, but a small part of them were taken without any registration. However, starting from April, 2023 when FRONTEX became operational on the south border in North Macedonia, the registration and the assessment procedures are improved. From the group of persons caught on the Macedonian territory, in 2025 some of them were transferred to the RC for foreigners and after giving their statements as witnesses in the criminal procedures against the smugglers they were released by submitting asylum requests.

In 2025, in 20 cases, MYLA had highlighted the principle of non-refoulement before the Sector for asylum and other institutions. Although most of the people on the move were caught on RNM territory, the state registers these cases as prevention from illegal entry to its territory.

North Macedonia doesn't have any visa exemptions for persons running from war or persecution.

ACCESS TO PROCEDURE

The Law on International and Temporary Protection (LITP) prescribes in details the procedure for a foreigner entitled to request asylum in Macedonia. These persons may do so at the border, in the nearest police station or in the Reception center for foreigners or to the Sector for Asylum, as the competent authority for conducting asylum procedures.

Even though in 2025 there was no officially registered intention for applying for asylum, during this period there were cases where the persons orally expressed their intention to apply for asylum; however, some of these requests were not processed on time due to technical difficulties or with the justification that the highest-ranking police officer must be present for the applications to be processed. MYLA responded to the competent authorities to enable unhindered access to the asylum procedure. In certain cases, it was noted that there was an unnecessary delay in the processing of the application for recognition of the right of asylum as well as a delay in the processes of transport to the Reception Center for asylum seekers. Filing a request for asylum for the persons detained as witnesses in RC for foreigners is allowed only after the testimonies by the persons in front of public prosecutors for the procedures against smugglers were finished.

MYLA noted a lack of safeguards for seeking protection. One person at the end of 2025 wanted to seek asylum in a smaller city in North Macedonia but the police officers didn't wanted to register the asylum request, probably because they didn't know how to do it.

2. Access to information and legal assistance (including counselling and representation)

MYLA has offices in each transit center to provide free legal aid for asylum procedures and legal counseling. Except for the legal counseling conducted by NGOs, the police and the authorities usually don't inform about the possibility of applying for asylum and the asylum procedure in the country. As an exception, in TC Vinojug the police together with FRONTEX inform the people about this right, and if they are interested, then MYLA provides additional information.

MYLA also has an office at the Reception center for asylum seekers in Skopje, in which it also provides free legal aid, legal counseling and representation of asylum seekers in their asylum procedures. However, in case of returns outside of a formal procedure, migrants are limited from access to information, legal assistance and the opportunity to appeal such conduct. There is a limitation as well in the Reception center for foreigners where they are detained as witnesses in the criminal procedures against the smugglers and they cannot effectively challenge the detention and don't have access to legal counseling and representation in this procedure. In 2025, the access to the people on the move by MYLA was limited in this center (Reception center for foreigners in the municipality of Gazi baba in Skopje) until the procedure upon their detention was finished and they weren't properly informed for their rights and legal opportunities. Some of them did not understand why they were detained, either because the reasons were not thoroughly explained or due to interpretation limitations. Most of them are released from the center after signing an asylum request. Afterwards, when they are transferred to the reception center for asylum seekers, they are often not aware of their asylum-seeker status or of what they have signed.

3. Provision of interpretation services (e.g. introduction of innovative methods for interpretation, increase/decrease in the number of languages available, change in qualifications required for interpreters)

In North Macedonia, the interpretation services are provided by international organizations in every stage of the asylum procedures and even before, in the registration processes. There is no state-funded interpretation system that could support these procedures. Even though in the Law on International and Temporary Protection the interpreter for the RSD should be arranged by the Sector for Asylum within the Ministry of Interior, this is not the case in reality. At the end of 2025, after MYLA intervention, the Sector for Asylum started to arrange interpreters for the RSD interviews, but not for every asylum seeker, so depending on the

4. Dublin procedures (including the organisational framework, practical developments, suspension of transfers to selected countries, detention in the framework of Dublin procedures)

N/A

5. Special procedures (including border procedures, procedures in transit zones, accelerated procedures, admissibility procedures, prioritised procedures or any special procedure for selected caseloads)

In North Macedonia, there aren't any special procedures conducted by the authorities. There is a possibility according to the Law on International and Temporary Protection (LITP) for some asylum seekers to be in an accelerated procedure if their request is inadmissible or manifestly unfounded, but it rarely happens. There were two cases conducted in accelerated procedure in 2025 for asylum seekers who have submitted subsequent asylum claim. There was an initiative from UNHCR supported by MYLA for prioritizing manifestly founded cases by the Sector for Asylum, but there isn't any significant development in this field because mainly the Sector is first waiting for the answer from the Agency for National Security on whether one asylum seeker is a threat to national security or not, which procedure may last for a longer period, and then decides on the merits of the claim. During this time, most of the asylum seekers leave the country without waiting for the final outcome of their asylum request.

In 2025, the Government brought an official decision to continue the granted temporary protection of the Ukrainians in Macedonia for one more year. More precisely, the temporary protection is granted to citizens of Ukraine and their family members, stateless persons and to foreign nationals who have been granted asylum or equivalent national protection in Ukraine and on members of their families to whom it is approved stay in Ukraine and of foreign citizens whose a valid permanent or temporary residence permit has been approved residence in Ukraine and who cannot return to the country of origin under permanent and long-term circumstances, who arrived in the Republic of North Macedonia after February 24, 2022, and cannot return to Ukraine due to war and occupation of part of its territory. However, this decision is not effectively implemented in practice since there are requirements for changes in the laws for their full enjoyment of rights in the country according to the temporary protection status. Most importantly, the laws has to be amended in order for the beneficiaries to enjoy the right to access medical services, social services and others.

6. Reception of applicants for international protection (including information on reception capacities – increase/decrease/stable, material reception conditions – housing, food, clothing and financial support, contingency planning in reception, access to the labor market and vocational training, medical care, schooling and education, residence and freedom of movement)

The only public institution for accommodating asylum seekers Reception center for asylum seekers – Vizbegovo started operating in 2008 and has a capacity of 150 beds and a possibility for extending the capacity to 250 beds. The institution has offices for the employees of the center, offices of the Sector for asylum, and offices for international and domestic organizations. The public institution for accommodating asylum seekers Reception center for asylum seekers – Vizbegovo Skopje is determined as an institution whose aim and task is to accommodate and shelter asylum seekers. The nominal activity of the institution is reception, accommodating, feeding, and organizing cultural, leisure and recreational activities, social work services and other services in accordance with the minimum standards for reception of asylum seekers, as determined with international acts ratified by the Constitution of RNM. It is under the authority of the (former) Ministry of Labor and Social Policy, now Ministry of Social Policy, Demography and Youth. As an exception, the unaccompanied children up to 12 years are accommodated in a foster families. Other asylum seekers may be accommodated in an individual private accommodation at their own cost with prior written approval by Ministry. The asylum seekers have three meals a day. All of the asylum seekers have access to a doctor, which is present three times a week. The venue was regularly disinfected and cleaned. MYLA was continuously present in this center, and through providing free legal aid, conducted legal counseling, protection of the rights of the asylum seekers and representation during their asylum procedures. Through everyday communication with the asylum seekers and referring their needs to the center, their requests and appeals were fulfilled and realized. All of the children, whose parents gave consent, were enrolled in primary school and attended the classes. However, the numbers decrease throughout the years. However, the access to education for older children remains a challenge. There isn't any effective access to secondary schools, as well as there is no appropriate knowledge assessment for these children. In the past year, one NGO was present at the center to carry out educational activities with children and adult asylum seekers. However, due to budgetary constraints in 2025, this organization stopped its activities.

The right to work is anticipated for the asylum seekers in the LITP, in this manner: "The asylum seekers until the taking of a final decision in the procedure for recognition of the right to asylum have the right to: - work only within the Reception Centre or another place of accommodation determined by the Ministry of Labour and Social Policy, and right to free access to the labour market for an applicant whose asylum application has not been decided upon by the Sector for Asylum within a period not exceeding nine months since the submission of the application". However, even after these nine months the asylum seekers are prevented from this right. The asylum seekers can't work in the center during these nine months while waiting for the decision, nor they obtain a financial support by the country. The LITP and the Law on Personal Identification Number, should be amended in order to provide and facilitate the access of the asylum seekers to the labor market. The problem that remains is the lack of possibilities for receiving a PIN (personal identification number) for an asylum seeker which would facilitate the process for their registration in the Employment Agency of RNM, opening a bank account and all of the other employment-related processes in order to be legally employed. The asylum seekers accommodated in the center have a right to freely leave the center, but must come back at 10 p.m. in order to be noted as present. If they are not present for more than 72 hours in the center, the center notifies the authorities which afterwards may terminate their asylum procedure

7. Detention of applicants for international protection (including detention capacity – increase/decrease/stable, practices regarding detention, grounds for detention, alternatives to detention, time limit for detention)

Detention of asylum seekers: Under the provisions of the LITP, the Ministry of Interior is authorized to enforce restrictions on the freedom of movement for asylum seekers in exceptional occasions for a period of three months with the possibility to extend it for three more months. However, it is worth noting that this measure has been employed infrequently. MYLA doesn't have any official statistics on the number for 2025 yet. MYLA is aware for only one case of an asylum seeker being detained for almost a year in the center, but is represented by another lawyer.

The detention of asylum seekers is usually conducted in the Reception center for foreigners which is a closed type of center and there aren't any alternatives to detention available for them.

Generally speaking, all asylum seekers, once their asylum applications are officially registered, are provided accommodations at the Reception Center for asylum seekers, which is an open-type facility, allowing them freedom of movement in accordance with the house order.

In 2025, the administrative detention of migrants as witnesses in criminal proceedings was carried out in the Reception Center for Foreigners. Detention on the grounds of being a witness in a criminal procedure does not constitute a lawful basis for detention. As most detainees did not have access to legal counseling or representation during this procedure, they were unable to challenge potential irregularities. In 2025, migrants continued to transit through RNM using irregular routes and smuggling networks. At the Reception Center for Foreigners, not all individuals received formal detention decisions. However, MYLA does not have information on whether any of these decisions were appealed. To MYLA's knowledge, none of the detention decisions were challenged. In 2025, immigration-related detention continued to be treated as part of an administrative procedure and was not subject to judicial review. There were no alternatives to detention in place, so even though the management in the center decided not to accept (detain) unaccompanied children, however children with parents were detained (in small numbers). Furthermore, alternative care mechanisms prescribed by the Law on Social Protection, such as foster families or small group homes, do not apply to foreign children. This may amount to discriminatory treatment of children based on their legal status.

It is worth noting that in 2025 the duration of detention was significantly shorter compared to previous years. Positively, unaccompanied children were not detained in 2025, following a decision by the management of the Reception Center.

8. Procedures at first instance (including relevant changes in: the authority in charge, organisation of the process, interviews, evidence assessment, determination of international protection status, decision-making, timeframes, case management – including backlog management)

The asylum procedure in RNM starts with submitting an asylum application. The Sector for asylum in the Mol is authorized body for conducting the asylum procedure. The procedure is administrative and one-instance, which means that against the decision reached by the Sector, an appeal is not allowed, and the asylum seeker is entitled to file a lawsuit before the Administrative court of RNM. In 2025 (according to MYLA statistics), 165 persons filed request for asylum in North Macedonia. The Sector schedules and conducts the RSD interviews within the deadlines as prescribed by law, i.e. it is aware of the deadline within which it shall reach a Decision, so it conducts them within the timeframe from 15 days (deadline for conducting an accelerated procedure) to 6 months (deadline for conducting a regular procedure which can be extended for 3 more months for exceptional reasons). The average time after conducting the interview and until there is a final decision is 46 days. During the interview with the asylum seekers, besides the authorized officials, also present may be the representatives of the asylum seekers, a parent or guardian, if such is appointed to the asylum seeker, interpreter from the language understood by the asylum seekers and an UNHCR representative. Until now, at all of the hearings held before the Sector, a representative from MYLA has been present at all of the interviews where asylum-seekers were represented by MYLA and after the interviews, final words were delivered to the Sector. Despite the regular submission of closing speech after the conducted interview, these documents are rarely considered and the evidence are usually not examined, which can be concluded from the number of negative decisions reached in the asylum procedures. Also, from the attending at the interviews, MYLA lawyers have noticed and pointed out the use of leading questions in the conversation. In some cases, a greater number of questions regarding the travelling of the asylum seeker is noticed in comparison to the merits of the claim and the credibility of assessment. This may lead to a serious breach of substantial law. The quality of asylum decisions remains of concern. Most of those granted subsidiary protection are vulnerable persons and unaccompanied minors. Decisions are based on humanitarian needs but without proper consideration of the merits. If a lawsuit is submitted before the courts, the overall length of the entire asylum procedure is unreasonable; it may last for several years from initial registration of an asylum claim. In 2025, only one unaccompanied child from Syria was granted a subsidiary protection.

With that, it can be said that the recognition rate is very low. The small percent of asylum-seekers which were present during the asylum procedure and the fact that a lot of them left the country even before an interview was scheduled, which resulted in the procedure being terminated by the Sector, is a factor which plays an important role in determining the percent of approved asylum requests.

The decisions with which the applications for asylum were rejected remained a challenge. In the process of deciding upon the asylum application, it can be noted that the Sector often pays attention to the technical aspects of the applications and to facts that are sometimes irrelevant for the examination of the asylum application, and in some cases it does not conduct essential and detailed examination of the need for international protection in the country. In the lawsuits filed against the decisions, better elaboration in decisions is often sought, as well as the need for the Sector to take into consideration the relevant statements and facts for the fear from expulsion and to punctually determine the facts for each individual case. In addition to this, in some cases, the summaries of the decisions do not contain sufficiently determined facts for the condition of the asylum seekers, or sufficient reasons for rejection of some of the statements and vice versa. The Sector for asylum usually does not use COI in the decision of the case. Due to this, MYLA in some cases identified breaches, because neither the relevant facts, the relevant laws and provisions from the country of origin, nor the relevant statements or documents for individual conditions of the asylum seekers were taken into consideration and examined in detail.

There is no backlog of cases. The Sector for asylum usually decides within the legal timeframe. Exceptionally, there can be a delay if they await the response from the Agency for National Security whether the asylum seeker is a threat to national security, which is taken as crucial element in the decision-making process.

9. Procedures at second instance (including organisation of the process, hearings, written procedures, timeframes, case management – including backlog management)

Upon reaching a Decision by the Sector, the asylum seeker is entitled to file a lawsuit to the Administrative court of RNM and in case of challenging the judgement of the Administrative court, an appeal can be submitted to the High Administrative court. Despite the procedure before the court being urgent under the LITP, the procedure before the courts may last up to two years. However, we shall note increased efficiency in the deciding upon cases in the last years. A positive verdict means that the Administrative court had annulled the decision reached by the Sector and the case had been returned to repeat the deciding before the Sector. The positive verdicts are mostly reached due to technical reasons. The Administrative Court and the High Administrative Court take decisions on procedural grounds rather than on the merits of individual asylum claims, even though they should decide on the merits according to the Law on Administrative Disputes. It should be noted that in 2024, the Administrative court for the first time has brought a judgement decided in merits, granting protection to one asylum seeker, but the second instance court in 2025 decided differently after an appeal was submitted, so the final decision is negative. The practice continued holding in-person hearings with attorneys and the asylum seekers can be present as well. However, the interpretation services should be provided by the applicant. Furthermore, decisions on expulsion are made with no quality assessment, and without the necessary steps being taken to ensure that returning people will not be subjected to persecution in their country of destination. In 2025, MYLA assisted asylum seekers in requesting legal representation to challenge asylum decisions through the state-funded free legal aid system, with lawyers appointed by the state. So far, five cases were referred to this system and two asylum seekers are represented by MYLA in front of the courts.

10. Issues of statelessness in the context of asylum (including identification and registration)

In North Macedonia there is not SDP in place. However, UNHCR and MYLA were making great effort in 2025 to include this procedure into the Law on Foreigners and it is actively working on this issue. According to MYLA data, there haven't been many stateless asylum seekers in North Macedonia through the years. Even if stateless, their asylum claim was rarely based on the nationality grounds.

11. Children and applicants with special needs (special reception facilities, identification mechanisms/referrals, procedural standards, provision of information, age assessment, legal guardianship and foster care for unaccompanied and separated children)

Within the LITP it is prescribed that when applying this Law, the special needs of vulnerable persons that are applicants, persons with refugee status, persons under subsidiary protection and persons under temporary protection shall be taken into consideration. Vulnerable persons, shall be persons without procedural capacity, minors, unaccompanied minors, persons in a serious health condition, persons with mental disabilities, persons with physical disabilities, elderly persons, pregnant women, single parents with minor children, victims of trafficking in human beings and persons who have been exposed to torture, rape and other severe forms of psychological, physical or sexual violence.

The special needs of the vulnerable persons referred to above shall be established by way of individual assessment of their condition by the competent public institution for social protection. The children-migrants and children-asylum seekers are one of the vulnerable categories which require special attention. The LITP prescribes protection to children accompanied by their parent or guardian, as well as to these without such company. Until December, according to MYLA, there were 12 UASC asylum seekers, which shows a decrease of the number taking in regard to 27 unaccompanied children last year. However, MYLA cannot confirm whether these figures are objective since there is no formal procedure to assess the age of the child. All children are registered as children as per their statement.

Each unaccompanied child asylum seeker was granted with a guardian appointed by the Center for Social Work, who submits the application for asylum on the child's behalf. However, most of them are left out of the protection system and leave as soon as they are accommodated in the Reception center for asylum seekers. The unaccompanied children this year were rarely used as witnesses in criminal procedures against their smugglers. In this country there are still no methods for monitoring the development and needs of the children to the amount to which they would stay here, since they often leave the country immediately, without having their needs and interests processed. Hence, a child control and protection mechanism are needed, as well as continuous work with the children which could establish a cooperation and support system in order to protect what represents their best interest. The UASC asylum seekers above the age of 12 are accommodated in the Reception center, and the smaller once in a foster family. However in some cases, exceptions are made, so children up to 15 years may be accommodated in foster family care. The child protection system, especially when it comes to the accommodation, remained non-functional for the child migrants and asylum seekers without parents or without parental care. There is a trend starting from three years ago of significant decline in the number of requests for asylum by guardians of unaccompanied children on the grounds that it was not in their best interest, thus leaving them outside the care system. Urgent introduction of alternatives is necessary, as well as well-functioning of the child protection system and mechanisms. This would help to avoid the practice of detention of children in inappropriate conditions and the internationally recognized principle that no child should be kept/detained due to immigration reasons could be respected. Although unaccompanied children were not detained in 2025 to serve as witnesses in criminal proceedings against smugglers, this practice was based solely on an oral statement and decision of the current management. There is no guarantee that a future change in management will not result in a different approach. The system is not productive for the disabled people as well, as they struggle to fully exercise their rights. There is no additional support in the reception centers for these people and provision of advanced care. Mainly, only the basic services are offered to them and sometimes they struggle to manage their situation. Many of the migrants actually become disabled in RNM through the irregular routes.

12. Content of protection (including access to social security, social assistance, health care, housing and other basic services; integration into the labour market; measures to enhance language skills; measures to improve attainment in schooling and/or the education system and/or vocational training)

What is necessary for providing full protection is one comprehensive data base/system for the asylum seekers shared among all stakeholders in order to promptly decide/react in cases of protection issues. Many of the services depend on international organizations such as UNHCR, IOM and others. UNHCR together with the Law on Philology developed a language learning platform available for all asylum seekers and persons under international protection. Vocational training is only available to persons under international protection and there aren't any specific programs for asylum seekers. Overall, there is a need for adoption of Strategy for integration for these categories of people including early integration and later full integration, because currently there are no strategic documents for integration in place. All persons granted international protection have access to the same social protection services as nationals, as well as health care, but integration is a challenge in the absence of a coherent approach. Many steps are taken ad hoc. The Ministry for Social Policy adopts an Integration program for people under international protection every year, in order to facilitate their integration. For elimination of all difficulties in the access of primary education, especially for asylum seekers, it is preferable for the state to implement the existing laws and bylaws properly toward these children and to facilitate the conditions for their enrolment, providing inclusion through special programs accordingly. The state should apply the same for the secondary education. Asylum seekers have difficulties accessing the labor market as stated above. On the other hand, people under international protection are not restricted in exercising this right. However, they do not have access to all services provided by the Employment Agency, such as access to state subsidies for opening a business and a small number of other services, which leaves them with only limited opportunities.

13. Return of former applicants for international protection

To former applicants for international protection the authorities give a deadline to voluntary leave the country after the final decision is reached. However, in 2025 they didn't have the obligation to return someone because the people have already left voluntarily, so there aren't any formal returns conducted. There are situations when an applicant submits a subsequent asylum request after the rejection of the first one or submits a request for temporary residence permit under humanitarian grounds according to the Law on foreigners.
