The 'Who is Who in International Protection in the EU+' project

Who is Who is a mapping project of various stakeholders and their role in asylum and reception systems at the European, national and local levels. The key actors and their roles are presented as defined in national policies and legislation and implemented in practice. The different competences and interlinks between actors are outlined.

The information is available online on the Who is Who platform: https://whoiswho.euaa.europa.eu

Methodology

The methodology applied to the EUAA's Asylum Report is followed in the Who is Who project. Accordingly, the Information and Analysis Sector undertakes desk research based on publicly-available sources and EUAA reports. The information is validated by Members States and other stakeholders, if applicable. For information produced by civil society organisations, the EUAA Consultative Forum will be consulted for validation. Elements of the project will be published in phases.

Overview of reception authorities

The recast Reception Conditions Directive (RCD)¹ establishes common standards in the area of reception, ensuring comparable and dignified living conditions for asylum seekers in all Member States.

This overview presents the authorities responsible for reception conditions in EU+ countries,² commonly referred to as reception authorities. In the majority of EU+ countries, there is only one responsible reception authority. However, there are exceptions: in Lithuania, there are two reception authorities and in Germany, each of the 16 federal states (Länders) have their own independent reception authority. Similarly, in Austria there is one federal agency and nine regional agencies, the latter of which did not provide input to this overview.

For each authority, the following elements are included in this overview:

- Legal status based on the following classifications:
 - Government agency (independent authority)
 - Federal government agency (independent authority)
 - Government entity forming part of a ministry
 - Independent regional authority
 - Law enforcement agency
 - Ministry
- Role and competencies (a table of the relevant competencies for each step of the reception procedure is included in Annex 1)
- Internal organisational structure
- Legal basis
- Hyperlinks to official websites and social media channels. For the full list of links, see Annex 2.

This overview supplements the mapping of Reception Authorities which is available on the interactive Who is Who digital platform.

¹ The CEAS is binding on all EU Member States except Denmark and Ireland. Ireland is not bound by any instrument adopted pursuant to the treaties in the field of asylum but can opt in to any such instrument. Ireland opted into the recast Reception Conditions Directive in 2018. Denmark has consistently opted out of treaty provisions in the field of Justice and Home Affairs, including issues concerning asylum (TFEU, Article 78). Consequently, Denmark does not participate and is not bound by the treaty provisions or any secondary legislation relating to CEAS, with the exception of the Dublin and Eurodac Regulations, which Denmark applies pursuant to an international agreement. Iceland, Norway and Switzerland are not bound by EU directives; however, similar national provisions apply. Given that these countries are bound by the Dublin III Regulation, additional provisions may apply. References to countries not bound by CEAS should be read in conjunction to existing legal frameworks.

² EU+ countries include EU Member States, Iceland, Norway and Switzerland.

Key findings

In 16 EU+ countries, the reception authority is a government entity forming part of a ministry or, in the case of two countries, a ministry itself. In 10 EU+ countries, the reception authority is an independent government or federal agency, and in two EU+ countries the reception authority is a law enforcement agency. In Germany, there is an independent reception authority in each of the 16 Länders.

22 reception authorities decide independently on the form and modalities of material reception conditions, while two authorities are partially involved in the discussion.

All 31 authorities provide accommodation to adult applicants and accompanied minors. Of these, 26 authorities are also responsible for the accommodation of unaccompanied minors. In addition, 29 authorities provide reception to beneficiaries of international protection to support their transition into mainstream housing.

29 reception authorities provide information on the rights and obligations of applicants in respect to material reception conditions. 24 reception authorities, including some of the Länders in Germany³, are responsible for issuing sanctions to applicants who breach house rules.

23 reception authorities, including some of the Länders in Germany, provide cultural mediation services. 11 reception authorities provide vocational training for adult applicants. In addition, 12 reception authorities, including a number of Länders in Germany, provide employment support. Moreover, nine reception authorities offer voluntary work opportunities.

22 reception authorities, including a number of Länders in Germany, offer language classes for adults, while 17 reception authorities, including some Länders in Germany, offer language classes for children. 14 reception authorities, including some Länders in Germany, provide additional educational activities for children.

In 25 EU+ countries, the reception authority is responsible for providing medical screenings. 26 out of 31 authorities directly provide the necessary health care, while 27 authorities also provide psycho-social support to applicants. In Germany, all Länders provide health care, but only some provide medical screenings and psycho-social support.

Reception authorities have invested in official websites to enhance their digital presence. All of the authorities, including the 16 German Länders, have a dedicated website. Many also have various social media channels.

Note: For the summaries, the two Lithuanian authorities were counted separately, while the German Länders were counted as one entity. If some Länders offer a service, it was determined that the German authority offers the service and a clarification is provided in the text.

³ Some Länders in Germany provide this service while others do not. Germany has been counted as one of the countries/reception authorities which provide this service.

Federal Agency for Reception and Support Services (BBU GmbH) and nine federal provinces

Bundesagentur für Betreuungs- und Unterstützungsleistungen + 9 Bundesländer

ROLE AND COMPETENCIES

The reception system in Austria follows the principle of shared responsibilities, so tasks are shared between the federal state and the federal provinces.

At the federal state level, the BBU GmbH is responsible for providing material reception conditions, including the provision of accommodation, everyday goods such as hygiene items, clothing and social, medical and psychological care. It is also responsible for providing legal advice and legal representation, interpretation and translation services, human rights monitoring, return counselling and return assistance.

At the provincial level, the authorities are responsible for the organisation of reception facilities and the provision of material reception conditions.

Federal Agency for the Reception of Asylum Seekers (Fedasil)

Agence fédérale pour l'accueil des demandeurs d'asile | Federaal agentschap voor de opvang van asielzoekers

ROLE AND COMPETENCIES

Fedasil is responsible for the reception of applicants for international protection and other target groups. Fedasil guarantees high-quality reception facilities and common standards between various stakeholders which operate reception facilities. Fedasil also prepares residents to move into local communities once the international protection procedure is completed. It also coordinates a voluntary return programme and participates in resettlement and relocation programmes.

Fedasil is responsible for:

- granting material reception conditions;
- organising a flexible and high-quality reception network in which particular attention is given to applicants with specific needs and vulnerable groups;
- managing a reserve of reception places which may be used during periods of high demand;
- providing information to residents on their rights and obligations and preparing them to lead an independent life after the procedure, either in Belgium or in the country of origin;
- supporting the local integration of reception centres;
- supporting the development and implementation of reception policies;
- managing resettlement and voluntary return programmes, together with return partners; and
- observing and integrating unaccompanied minors.

Ministry of the Interior, Department of Civil Liberties and Immigration

Ministero dell'Interno, Dipartimento per le Libertà civili e l'Immigrazione

ROLE AND COMPETENCIES

The Department of Civil Liberties and Immigration, which operates under the direction of the Ministry of the Interior, is responsible for the reception of applicants for international protection. The department operates at the local level through branch offices of the Ministry of the Interior, known as prefectures. The reception system also involves municipalities, non-governmental organisations, non-profit organisations and private companies which carry out different tasks, including the management of reception centres and the provision of certain services, such as psychological and social assistance. Collaboration is governed through an open tender procedure.

First assistance centres (Hotspots) and first reception centres are permanently available for use by the Ministry of the Interior. These centres are managed by non-government organisations, non-profit organisations or private companies which are selected through a call for procurement issued by a prefecture.

Temporary Reception Centres, also assigned on the basis of a call for procurement issued by a prefecture, are managed by non-government organisations, non-profit organisations or private companies.

The second level of the reception system, called the System for Reception and Integration, is managed by local governments, municipalities, non-government organisations, non-profit organisations and private companies.

ORGANISATIONAL STRUCTURE

The Central Direction for Civil Services for Migration and Asylum, within the Department of Civil Liberties and Immigration, is responsible for the governance of the reception system. The organisational chart is available on their website.

Government Office for the Support and Integration of Migrants
Urad Vlade Republike Slovenije za oskrbo in integracijo migrantov (UOIM)

ROLE AND COMPETENCIES

The Government Office for the Support and Integration of Migrants provides asylum seekers with accommodation, support and psychosocial assistance, in addition to offering integration support to beneficiaries of international protection. Asylum seekers are provided with accommodation at the Asylum Centre or one of its units. Through different programmes, asylum seekers may exercise their right to additional support in accordance with the applicable legislation.

A beneficiary of international protection is provided with accommodation at one of the integration houses or at a private address, and is assigned an integration counsellor who helps devise a personal integration plan. To ensure faster integration, beneficiaries of international protection may participate in various programmes.

The office coordinates with various stakeholders to organise and manage reception facilities (the Asylum Centre and its branches, integration houses and accommodation centres) and assess the situation and special needs of vulnerable persons, such as minors, unaccompanied minors, elderly, pregnant women and victims of trafficking.

ORGANISATIONAL STRUCTURE

The Office is divided into three sectors, the Reception and Support Division, the Integration Division and the Department of General Affairs.
